Mike Davis, Jim Bohn, Russ Kriess, and Tom Dufour:

The kids are off and running with their spring shed orders, but I'd like to thank JH Hassinger for the time they were able to give in helping teach masonry to the students in the Building Construction class at Slinger High School. The two weeks were very beneficial in providing students an excellent hands-on learning environment and also give them some great exposure to possible future careers.

I'd personally like to thank Tom for helping to get the ball rolling this past fall. Mike you did a great job with the slab portion of the unit. I know the kids were a little taken back by seeing a concrete truck roll up, but it was great for them to be able to understand how things work on a job site.

Russ and Jim, thanks for coming in those couple days and showing the basics of how to lay both block and brick. I apologize I wasn't able to be there the second day, but from what I heard the kids really enjoyed the experience.

Overall, it was a great experience for both the students and myself. The kids weren't happy to go back to just me teaching the following week. I can't tell you how important that kind of exposure can be for some of those students, whether it be a possible career down the road, or just them being able to apply that information sometime down the road in their own personal lives. The materials and time donated were more than what I had expected, and I couldn't thank you enough.

Sincerely,

Matt Kolpack
